PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The Tanzanian Bureau of Statistics estimates that by 2040 the Tanzanian population would have crossed 100 million mark. At 56 million mark currently, Tanzania faces immense challenges that affect significant portions of the population.

Anza is an innovation organization founded on the belief that entrepreneurs will transform Tanzania. However, early-stage entrepreneurs often lack business know-how, the necessary training, networks, and capital to grow.

Anza services assist to strengthen their business operations, increase profitability and scale their impact and job creation. It has provided over 2000 social enterprises from across Tanzania with over 5 years of strategic capacity building, trade linkages and access to flexible capital to maximize their ability to create jobs and provide access to life-improving products and services.

As part of the Human Development Innovation Fund (HDIF) Institutional Capacity Building Program (ICB), Anza is scaling up its investment readiness accelerator programme (developed with Village Capital) to support entrepreneurs from all over the country that are tackling Tanzania's largest social economic challenges.

Developing a venture pipeline and leveraging public and private sector networks, Anza is providing customized strategic capacity building, trade linkages and access to flexible capital to 24 early stage enterprises from Education, Healthcare and Water, Hygiene and Sanitation (WASH) to enable the said businesses to scale their operations and reach on average 288,000 in Tanzania while creating at least 72 sustainable jobs within the first 12 months of the programme.
